WHEELING, W. VA., MARCH 22, 1886.

Mr. Hurd and the Tulede Distric Mr. Frank Hurd, of the Toledo District is surprised, not to say shocked, by his treatment at the hands of a Democratic committee of the Democratic House of Representatives. Up to the last moment he was confident of a report giving him the seat. His greatest desire was to have the report held back, fearing that his gain of a seat in Congress under the circumstances, that is to say, without any right to it, would injure his party in the coming municipal elections in Onio. If now it shall help the Democratic party in Ohio to have been honest in the House of Rapresentatives, that will be something about which honest men will not quarrel.

The result will hardly help Mr. Hurd anywhere, for he made the contest on the mere strength of a Democratic majority in the House. Romeis def-atted him by 3.9 yotes in a poll of 25,183, and the Democrats of the district knew that their manwas beaten. Men of his own party tried to dissuade Hurd from a contest, but Hurd wasn't to be dissuaded. Now that, the committee has turned him down he blames i all on the Democratic protectionists of the committee, leaving no margin for honesty in his own party. The free traders in the House desire Hurd's help, for he is strong on that side, but it is improbable that this consideration will induce them to overrule the report of their own committee backed by the evidence.

A glance at the recent votes for Congress of the counties comprising the Tenth (Toledo) District will be interesting in connection with this case. The district was recomposed as now until the election of the corpse wrote it." A glance at the recent votes for Con nection with this case. The district was not composed as now until the election of give the scattering vote in the elections prior to 1882, because in the records at hand the scattering vote is not given by counties, but for the whole district. The Greenback vote disappeared as an essential factor after the election of 1878. R. D. 3.544

In each of these years Hurd was his party's nominee, and in the last two presidential elections he was defeated, once in the old district and once in the new. The significant fact is that though the district was made to be solidly and certainly Democratic it has been carried, and it is reasonable to suppose that with good work it can be carried this year, though the "off-vears" in this district are though the "off-years" in this district are better for the Democracy.

It is thought that Hurd cannot secure the nomination sgain. The district has every reason not to electafree trader. We should rather like to see him try his hand once more against Romeis, who has shown the qualities of a good campaigner.

Labor's Commendable Action,

The car men of Pittsburgh have been diliberate and prudent in formulating and presenting their demands. By their course they not only show their own belief in the justice of their demands, but they strengthen themselves in public opinion, which labor should ever try to They have told their employers what they want, and while they await the reply they go on with their work. The public convenience is not interferred with, the business of the companies is not embarrassed, the fund out of which their wages are paid is not impaired. They ask, and wait a reasona-

The verb "to interview" has been adopted into the French language. The Independence Helge mentions that "Le cure de la patonsse a declaire au reporter qui t' interviewait," etc. Thus the American language is apreading over the world.

They ask, and wait a reasonable time—something over a week. If they gain their point, they will have lost nothing by not striking. If the companies refuse to yield, nothing will have been lost, but very much gained, in public esteem by their having sought an amicable settlement with their employers. If they are met by an aderse decision, and a strike is resolved upon, they can strike as easily then and with better effect.

The request of the men is reasonable—two dollars a day for twelve hours work—and we hope it may be granted promptly and in good spirit.
